Our "American Heritage" includes not only the rights and freedoms as given or denied us in our Constitution, but the knowledge and discoveries made long before the founding and settling of America. Our language, form of government, literary works, and great art are all products of past knowledge. Our entire civilization was and is being formed through the immigration and the intermingling of peoples and ideas.

Only 174 years have elapsed since the Articles of the Northwest Ordinance gave young people in this area a foundation for free education. Great strides have truly been made in this time, as America is the first country which gave the right of free education to all of its people.

Our heritage is the past of man's history, but our concern is the future. To understand the present and to prepare for the future, we must know our past. Education relates this past and present to the future.

Ordinance of 1787—

"— — religion, morality and knowledge being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged — — "

" — — there shall be neither slavery nor involuntary servitude in said territory — — "

"Lincoln, the Young Lawyer"

"Lincoln, the Young Lawyer" is depicted leaning against a desk in our statue, which adorns the central hall. This bronze statue, which stands five feet high, was made by Lorado Taft, a sculptor from Illinois. It was received in November, 1926, and the money received from a paper sale paid the cost.

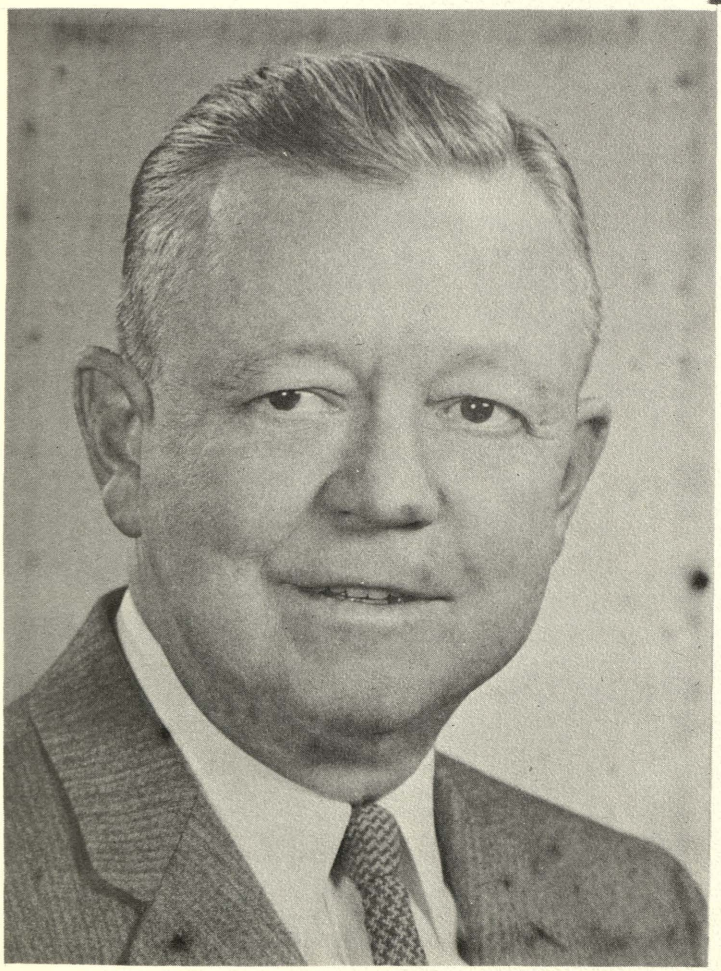
Miss Velora Faist and Mr. Chester Johnson have been teaching here for many years and have gained the respect and admiration of both faculty and students. By manner, by example and in their dedication to their profession, they have taught us more than "book knowledge."

MISS VELORA FAIST



They have achieved the highest tribute payable to them, the appreciation of their students for not only the academic knowledge that they have gained but the teaching to be a productive and participating member of our democratic society. To them, we gratefully and respectfully dedicate this annual.

MR. CHESTER JOHNSON

This year the theme of your annual is "Your American Heritage." You can be very proud of your forefathers who had as one of their objectives, improvements of education. We have a fine building, student body and a wonderful faculty. May you in the future have the same feeling toward your schools that your parents have had in the past.

We hope you will enjoy your annual for many years to come. The editorial and printing staffs have done an excellent job in producing a fine book.

Floyd E. Byron

The founding fathers of our country felt that a basic education for everyone was an important part of our new nation. Public laws were passed to insure the financial support of schools in order to make an education available to anyone who wanted it. This is a part of our American Heritage.

I hope that each of you will think long and hard about your educational opportunities and avail yourselves of these opportunities to the utmost of your abilities. You are laying the foundation for your future life. Make sure it is a firm foundation.

John D. Parr

MRS. NAOMI M. MYERS
Elementary Principal

To preserve our precious freedom is to live it. As we work and play in this great land of ours may our aim always be to build a nation and to help build a world in which every human being shall continue to be free to develop his capacities to the fullest.

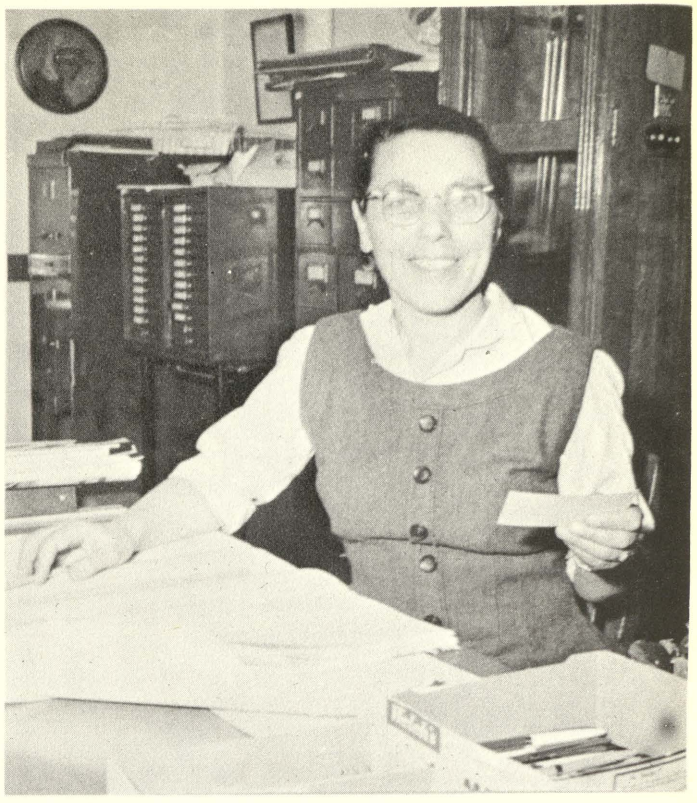
Board of Education: R. J. Heagany, Walter C. Averill, Jr., Hiel M. Rockwell, Eugene P. Stansbury, Robert W. Grant, Jr., Superintendent Charles C. Coulter, Walter A. Leesch, Jr., Harold M. Karls.

Mrs. Edith Otto and Mrs. Janet Ellithorpe, the two competent secretaries, help the faculty and students by keeping records, making the bulletin, and finding the things we lose. On them we, the students, rely.



Girl Fridays and boy Fridays assist the secretaries by distributing the notices, collecting absent slips, and doing many more jobs around the office.

Faculty

In comparing Icabod Crane, a character cre ated by Washington Irving, with "Our Mis Brooks" a difference such as that of nigh and day may be seen. But this is just on of the many changes that have taken place
While in the times of the first public school a high school education was the only neces sary educational requirement, today ou teachers are four, five and six year colleg graduates. Methods are also changing rapid ly, but one thing remains the same. Teach ers, no matter of what era, are the corne stone of education and the foundation o our future success.

These teachers have devoted twenty-five years or more to teaching students at North. They have given freely of their time and talent to succeeding generations of Saginaw students. These teachers have seen the New North Intermediate School become "Old North," former students become leaders in the community and have seen their children sit in the seats of their fathers and mothers in the same classroom.

Frank Alex

North is very proud of its well kept building. Everyone helps to keep it clean and outstanding, but the credit goes to the maintenance staff. They wash fingerprints off walls and windows, keep floors scrubbed and polished and fix everything from locker locks to furnace pipes. We wish to take this opportunity to thank them for their work.

Cafeteria Workers

Left to Right: S. Near, B. Haase, C. Coffel, and C. Hibbard

Mrs. Thelma Coggin, cafeteria manager, and Mrs. Winnie Gross plan and prepare the meals served in the cafeteria aided by Brigitte Haase, Sandra Oblander, Ann Clothier, Lupe Perez, Lena Hernandez, Sue Near, Carol Coffel, and Mary Jane Light. Each day the students and faculty members may purchase the dishes which have been prepared by the cafeteria staff.

Students

Upon entering North in September, we students were again participating in an educational system passed down to us as the result of the hard work and high ideals of our forefathers. We said, "It couldn't be done," but, now, as we're leaving, we look back and marvel at how much has been accomplished in so little time.

Northites Receive Counselor's Assistance

North's guidance program has been conducted by Miss Alice Arnold and Mr. Chester Johnson. These teachers, specialists in this field, offer aid to any student desiring counseling. They discuss with students educational, vocational, and personal problems, and conduct group discussions on social problems. Many spirits of ambition have been ignited and career ideas implanted. We are truly grateful for their efforts toward improving our future and continuing our American heritage of free decisions.

Around North you'll find many people offering aids to the well-being of students. Reading enrichment classes under Mrs. Caroline Cline and classes for speech improvement conducted by Miss Anita Wendt attempt to help students with problems in these fields. Health advice is given by the school nurse, Miss Agusta Ruede, and eye tests were given by Miss Loretta Bray in an effort to ward-off serious eye problems. Cooperation by juvenile officer William Thompson and Sargeant Henry Pawlik with the school has aided many students in solving their very serious problems.

University Students Extern Here

During the school year several students from the state universities have interned in the elementary and junior high school class rooms. From Central Michigan University came Mr. Walter Mattinson who interned with Mr. Goodenow, Miss Amanda Hicks with Miss Palmer, Miss Nancy Neff with Mrs. Vogel, and Mrs. Joyce Holsinger with Miss Close. Three came to North from Michigan State University. Miss Nancy Sarow worked with both Mrs. Newberg and Mrs. Northcott while Mr. Michael Russell was with Miss Trask. Mrs. Barbara Horner externed the first semester with Mr. Gibbs and then continued at North the second semester as a mathematics teacher.

With Mr. Heinz in Wood Shop was Mr. Thomas Burr from Central Michigan University.

Classrooms

Little red school houses have grown int modern buildings and our classrooms are no lon er the same as in pioneer days. If Lincoln were return and walk into our modern classrooms, h would be amazed at the colorful and numerou text books, at the wall maps, the movie projecto

Journalism, Art, Printing Produce North's Publications

Since John Peter Zenger's trial for libel in 1735, the power of the printed word has grown. In North's journalism class, students are taught creative writing, newspaper make-up, and the responsibilities of bringing ideas and information to others. This, under the direction of Miss Alice Arnold, has been done in newspaper publications and in this annual. We, the editorial staff of the annual, would like to give thanks to Mr. Richard Foulds and his art classes, Mr. Louis T. Soblesky and his printing classes, Werkma Studio, and Mr. Belmont Willard's printing department at Arthur Hill Technical High School for all their work.

Just as our country is called the melting pot, so is our language. Many people from every corner of the world have brought their languages with them. In the English classes we seek to improve our means of communication by understanding how our language was formed and the correct use of English in speaking and writing, and by improving our listening, observational and reading skills.

North's Students Prepare for Unknowns

From the depths of the ocean to the planets of outer space and then from the knowledge of how a wheel turns to the complicated study of mechanics, these were some of the subjects of projects sent to the Science Fair by Northites. The projects showed some of the facets of science studied at North.

No longer must a homemaker toil over an open hearth fire preparing meals or pedal by the hour to sew a fine seam. The modern stoves and sewing machines have changed methods completely. Future homemakers of tomorrow are practicing today at home and in homemaking class. Today's and the future's homemaker must be almost a scientist to count the calories, vary the diet, allot the vitamins, repair the mixer, and manipulate the dish washer!

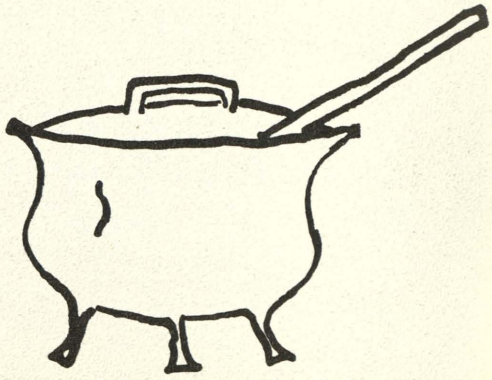
North Teenagers Prepare



Pride in workmanship and satisfaction in accomplishment have always been a part of our heritage from Eli Whitney and Henry Ford to the present. Because of the many industries in Michigan, many boys with talent have profitable occupations ahead. Our industrial arts classes are the doorway to a useful career or a lifelong hobby. The accomplishments of the past will be the experience these boys have now and will use in the future.

Vocal Music—Mr. Havers

Band—Mr. Somerville

Students at North have a variety of electives from which to choose. These subjects give every student the opportunity of discovering hidden talents or to form the basis of life-long hobbies.

Vocal music under the direction of Mr. Havers and band and orchestra classes under Mr. Somerville teach appreciation of music as well as developing musical skill.

Students learn the keyboard, and in writing letters, memos, reports, and exercises learn speed and touch from Mr. Galloway.

Auditorium—Miss Favara

Experiences in speech and dramatics are given students in auditorium by Miss Favara. In the art classes Mr. Foulds's students learn the art of self-expression and an appreciation of artistic techniques.

In the library, students are shown the correct use of the library as well as being able to obtain books for reports and enjoyment from Miss Austin.

From the language of the Latins of the past to the present speech of the Spaniards and the French, we are daily becoming better acquainted with the people and their customs in our foreign language classes. In Saginaw, where so long the French ruled, we have a rich heritage from those French Founders; while in the past century, we have had many come from Mexico.

Latin, Spanish, German and French carols were sung in the hall at Christmas time.

Organizations Activities

Quilting bees, corn husking contests, and square dancing were entertainment for the pioneers of the 1800's, but now in the twentieth century student activities, which hold our interests are in the field of science, world correspondence, and social exercises. Whether it is leading a cheer for our school team or buying a season ticket, this helps us to know ourselves better and to help make us participating American citizens.

P. T. A. 1960-61

"A Citizen's Responsibility for Education in a Free Society"

Early in September the P. T. A. entertained the teachers and board members at a "get acquainted tea." On October 20th, Mr. John Fordham from London, England, spoke using the P. T. A. theme for his topic.

The annual card party and bake sale took place on November 17th. The Christmas meeting was December 15th when the auditorium and vocal music classes presented a program, "Christmas in an Alpine Village."

In January, the P. T. A. meeting was "Open House." This year the parents followed their children's schedule, and the teachers gave the goals and over view of their subjects.

"Founder's Day" was celebrated February 16th with a Smorgasbord. Judge Glen Jordan spoke on delinquency for Fathers' Night, March 16th. For the April 20th meeting, Mr. Soblesky showed a film. The year concluded with the Kindergarten Tea.

Student Council

Under the direction of School President Phyllis Peacock and School Vice-president Kathryn Minard with Sally Armstrong as secretary, the Student Council worked with Mr. Newberg, sponsor, to build school spirit as well as school and personal responsibility. In cooperation with the Presidents' Council they sponsored a "School Spirit" assembly program.

Student Council

Phyllis Peacock, school president, Paul Corrad, president of Vice-president's council Richard Parrette, representative of Regular Monitors Sally Armstrong, president of President's Council, Katherine Minard school vice-president, Diane Berger, president of Booster's Council, Mark Fisher, head of Morning Monitors Mr. Newberg, sponsor, John Braun, head of Noon Monitor.

Councils Aid Students in Learning Self-Government.

President's Council

The main duty of the President's Council, sponsored by Mr. Parr, is to boost good citizenship and scholarship at North. Sally Armstrong was the president and Sue Case, vice-president. The council sponsored the Friday noon dances.

Past President Robert Trew hands the gravel to new President Phyllis Peacock as Vice-president Kathryn Minard watches after the swearing-in assembly.

Vice-President's Council

Paul Corrad, North's president of the Vice-president's Council which oversees our Junior Red Cross activities, was elected head of the City Junior High Division of the Junior Red Cross. Other officers of the council, sponsored by Mrs. Mertz, were: Don Dawson, vice-president, Joanne Rau, secretary and Cheryl Meier, treasurer.

Secretary's Council

Secretaries aid their homeroom teachers and presidents in the conducting of home room meetings. Miss Meyer was the sponsor and Joy Faletti was president, Elizabeth Lagalo, vice-president and Jane Pate, secretary.

Booster's Council

Ticket selling is the main job of the Booster's Council under the direction of President Diane Berger, Vice-president Sue Brandt, and Secretary Diane Henne. At every game, play, annual sale or other school activity when tickets are sold, there is Mrs. Bosley, sponsor of the Booster's Council.

Pen Pal Club

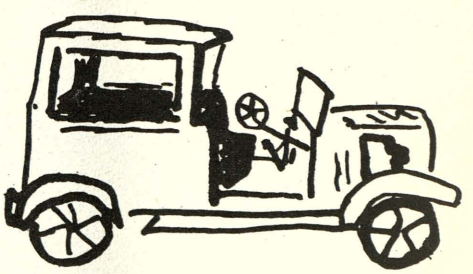
Under the sponsorship of Mr. Johnston, the Pen Pal Club encourages Northites to write to boys and girls in other lands. They find out about the country, government and customs of those lands. The president is John Braun while Betty Glaser is secretary.

Y-Teens

Cheryl Spatz is president of the Y-Teens, a junior high girls' club, sponsored by the Y. W. C. A. to foster understanding of others and to aid people and to share in friendship with people of all races and nationalities. Jane Morey is vice-president, Jean Morey, secretary, and Carol Fruk, treasurer.

Photography Club

Reactivated at the beginning of the second semester, the "Photography Club" elected Cheryl Arft, president, Stephanie Scott, vice-president, Dale Wiltse, treasurer, and Ann Matoy, secretary. The purpose of the club is to learn about photography in all of its phases. The club has sub-divided into five groups: Cameras, Projection, Picture Taking, Developing and Printing. Mr. Gibbs sponsors the club which meets Monday noon in room 115.



Librarians

Checking books due, reading the shelves, and doing the many tasks necessary to aid Miss Austin in the smooth running of the library are the duties of the library helpers.

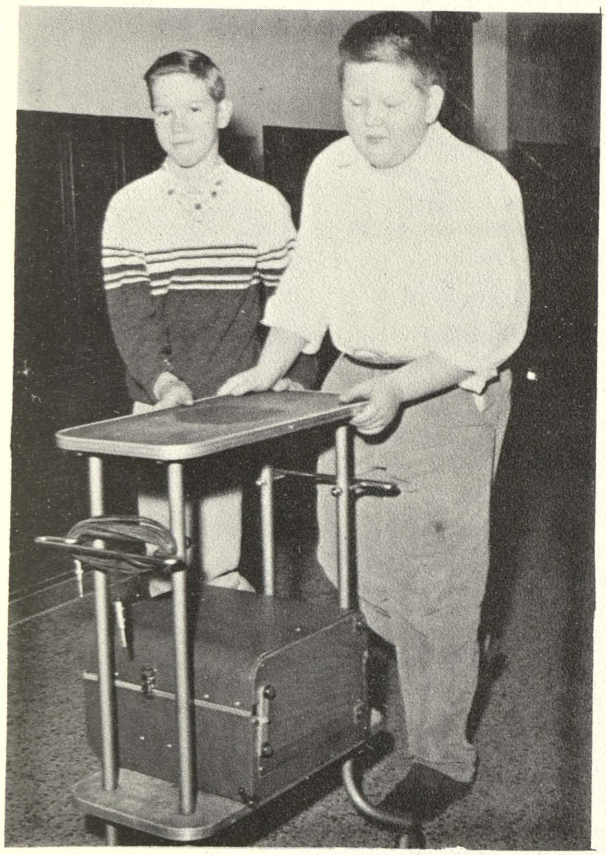
Students Give Valuable Aid



Projection Crew

An important part of making the noon movies run smoothly is the projection crew, Gary Graham and Tom Schlueter. They run the projector and help the stage crew. They are also responsible for the transportation of audio and visual aids to the class room.

Stage Crew

During programs, concerts, assemblies and noon movies the stage crew, Ronald Taub and Paul Davis, have the responsibility of pulling the curtain and taking care of the stage.

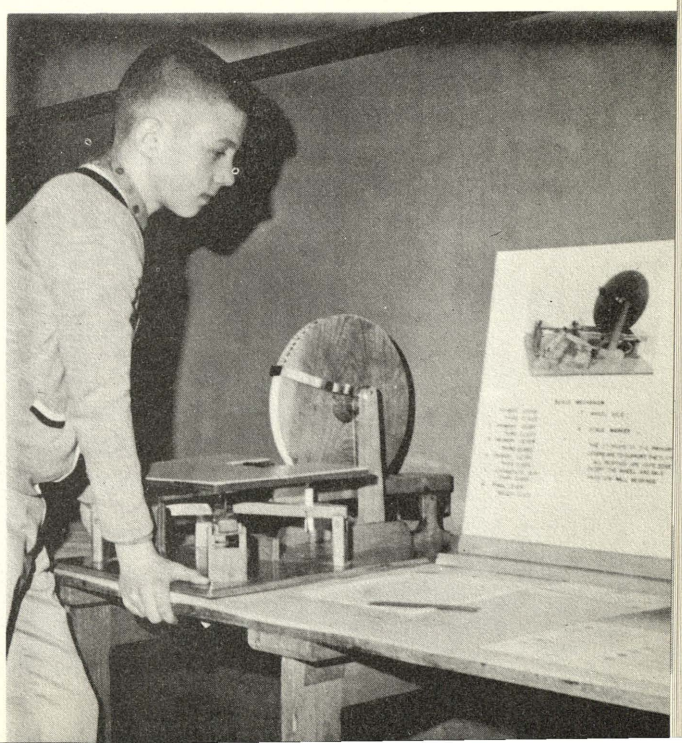
Science Students Gain Recognition

Science Quiz Team

Miss Meyer, R. Brown, J. Wallace, R. Jensen, R. Garn



North is justly proud of her Science Fair entrants. Twenty students received blue ribbons for placing in the top third of the Junior High Division, fifteen received red ribbons, the second highest given, while ten received white ribbons.

Michael Jank won first prize in the Junior High Division. His award was a Book of Popular Science and a trophy. The first place in Biology went to Diane Calkins. Kenneth Heister won one of the awards given by the Air Force. Both Mary Mahan and Bill Soper won Honorable Mention Awards.

Sports

Since the time of ancient Greece, the art of developing the human body along with developing the mind has been the goal of physical education. Sports, competitive between schools and competitive between classes, are provided at North with a well-rounded program of athletics. The ability to discipline the muscle and the body to the will of the mind by exercises, to win or to lose gracefully, to participate with fervor and to learn skill is the same in football and basketball today as in the Indian wrestling or the foot-races of colonial days.

Elementary

Little faces filled with the eagerness to learn are typical of the elementary grades and have been since the first school was opened. The open mind of a starry-eyed child, undimmed by worldly feuds, is waiting to conquer their dreams of tomorrow. Taking self-responsibility and learning to live with others is an important step in their education. This along with the fundamentals of the three R's is their foundation for their future.

Kindergarteners Learn to Work, Play Together--

Kindergarten offers the preschool child valuable experiences. In this group, they learn to know other children, what to expect from them and how to cope with the total school experience. The children learn to be part of a group, to work in it with team spirit, merging their personal feelings into the group. This helps them prepare for work in the first grade classrooms.

First Graders Learn To Read— To Listen—

Miss Palmer's first graders had a very busy and happy year. They enjoyed learning to read and to write and had such fun fishing for words in their fish pool.

They enjoyed their Gift Shop at Christmas. They had units on pets and animals, the library, the seasons and the greenhouse. Miss Amanda Hicks from C. M. U. did her student teaching in their room.

Their mothers came to their "Easter Parade." They wrote many original stories and poems.

This year Mrs. Tunison's first graders studied about pets, the circus, community helpers and the bakery. They made bread and cake in their room. The Eskimo exhibit at the Saginaw Museum was very educational and interesting they found.

They wrote a weekly newspaper called "The First Grade News." They made a Christmas book, circus, phonetic, number and story books.

Second Graders Learn 3 R's

Now that the pupils in Mrs. Ruby's second grade can read independently, they can search for their own answers in social studies, science and news events. They learned how to work on committees.

To get first hand information about the community and its workers, they visited the Gase Bakery and Sealrich Dairy. These experiences revealed to them many things not found in books.

From the leaf collections in the fall, evolved the study of plants: their parts, needs and their relationship to man and to animals. They planted seeds and grew some green beans.

The second grade in Mrs. Willman's room has had a busy year. They have studied many units such as transportation, sources of food, the post office, and the community. They have worked on a spelling vocabulary, and also can say a few German words. They have enjoyed experimenting with growing plants, experiments and simple machines. Their ability to color and paint has been evident in their room. Among their extra activities have been writing original songs, building a post office in the room, and building a clay city. They took trips to the Tri-City Airport, Gase Baking Company, Sealrich Dairy, the Museum and the fire station.

Early America Captures Third Grade Interest

The third graders in Mrs. Walker's room have enjoyed becoming acquainted with their community helpers.

The study of transportation led to a train trip to Bay City and bus trips to the Bintz Apple Orchard and the Tri-City Airport.

While studying pioneers, they visited Judy Gamon's home to see a collection of Early American objects. They made pomanders and braided rag rugs which were used as chair covers. They expected that their study of Indians will be equally enjoyable.

The third graders in Miss Kundinger's room enjoyed working and playing together this year. They've read many books. They learned to "carry" "borrow," multiply and divide.

For part of the year they were Indians and enjoyed doing many things as the Indians did. Then they became Pioneers and had many new experiences. They especially liked to knit, weave and dance.

They have performed many experiments and brought in insects, shells, stones and seeds for science displays.

They visited the Saginaw Museum and Bintz's Apple Orchard.

Varied Activities Interest Fourth Graders

Miss Close's fourth graders perfected and added to previous skills. They placed much emphasis upon the importance of being a "good" citizen. Early in the year they made plans to visit the Exhibit Museum at the University of Michigan. The class was interested in music, art and dramatics. This year they were introduced to elementary physical education. Many children enrolled in the after school enrichment classes in typing, French and physical education.

Mrs. Vogel's fourth graders had an interesting study of the universe climaxed by a trip to the Longway Planetarium in Flint. They are now making a mural which shows what they have learned about the animal kingdom from prehistoric times to the present. They are keeping charts for arithmetic and trying to improve each week.

They are looking forward to having Miss Nancy Neff, a student teacher from C. M. U., spend eight weeks with them this semester.

Trips Add Knowledge For Fifth Graders

In science this year Mrs. Campbell's fifth and sixth graders have studied undersea life, airplanes and about the universe. They plan a visit to the airport soon. When they studied about Brazil, Mr. Clyde Collins came and talked to them about his home life there. Their scrapbooks have been growing all year with news, stories, book reports and science reports.

The fifth graders in Mrs. Wells's class listed many things as accomplishments for this year: Learned about fractions, studied Michigan and Canada, made a trip to the Sugar Beet Factory and another one to Lansing where they toured the Capitol, Michigan Historical Society and Michigan State Museum; made a special effort to be better citizens and assume more responsibility for their own work and actions.

Foreign Countries, Science Motivates Sixth Graders

Sixth graders in Miss Mannion's room, have had a busy year. They studied newspapers and made a collection of them from forty different places. They took a trip through the Saginaw News.

They made a science mural of both vertebrates and invertebrates and marine life, past and present. This study led to a trip to the University of Michigan Museum.

They studied about Great Britain, the Soviet Union and South America.

Monitor Patrol

Under the direction of Mrs. Wise, assisted by Miss Close and Miss Mannion, the Elementary Choir was very active. They participated in the Christmas Program for the P. T. A. and in several other assemblies.

Mr. Joseph Rousseau, crossing guard, guides elementary children across Bond and Bristol Street.

Boosters sell tickets for many different activities. They go to meetings called by Mrs. Bosley for instructions. Their aim is developing school spirit in the elementary grades.

The Elementary Student Council meets with Mrs. Myers to discuss school and student problems. The officers of the Student Council are: President Cheryl Holtz, Captain of the Monitors, Vice-President Kris Lauer Captain of the Monitor Patrol, Secretary William Mueller, Captain of the Patrols. Members of the student council are the officers of the homerooms and a representative from each room.
